What is database?

A database is an organized collection of data. It is the collection of schemes, tables, queries, reports, views and other objects.

The data is typically organized to model aspects of reality in a way that supports processes requiring information, such as modelling the availability of rooms in hotels in a way that supports finding a hotel with vacancies.

Database IN Wikipedia. Retrieved October 3, 2015 from <https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Database>

Why do we use database?

- People use database because, for a great deal of tasks we do over our daily lives with any job, we need information to complete the tasks

⇒ Database allows you to find the needed information in an efficient manner

- Database can take many different forms
- ProQuest is a database for academic research
i.e. database for YOU
- By making yourself familiar with using database & software while at university, you can get ahead of others before starting your career

Why should you use ProQuest?

- UNLIKE the internet, ProQuest contains ONLY the contents that can be referenced for your essays & theses.
 - ⇒ ProQuest has little 'noise' or irrelevant information.
- Rich contents provide diverse perspectives.
 - ⇒ Views for & against regarding a particular idea or a policy
 - ⇒ Various views originated in different parts of the world
 - ⇒ Historic perspectives on the same topic that changed over the years
- Sophisticated search functionality that makes efficient information-gathering and research possible.
- The contents are great examples for your writing essays and theses.

Highlights

- Although quarterly growth slowed to 0.1% in Q1, this followed two very strong quarters and still meant that the economy was 3.8% up on a year earlier, the fastest in the EU. Household consumption was the main driver of economic growth, up 6.6% year-on-year, comfortably its strongest rate since before the global financial crisis. And while Q2 may see some softback for consumption after the sharp rise in Q1, we expect a robust underlying trend in the coming quarters. By contrast, both government consumption and investment contracted in Q1, but the latter should start to pick up soon in response to the marked improvement in both exports and consumer spending over the last year. With regard to the external sector, the likely boost to exports from the gradual Eurozone recovery is likely to be outweighed by faster domestic demand sucking in more imports. Overall, we have raised our 2014 GDP growth forecast to 3% from 2.6% last month.
- CPI inflation was just 0.3% in May, the lowest on record. In large part, the latest decline was driven by...
- we do not believe that the central bank will lower the policy interest rate any further (it last cut in February). The central bank attributes recent currency strength to external factors and it believes inflation will pick up in the coming months.
- The IMF remains confident in Romania's ability to implement meaningful structural reform. However, policymakers still need to make a lot of progress if they are to achieve the IMF targets. While Romegas was privatised last year, energy sector assets Hidroelectrica and Oltenia have yet to be sold off. In addition, despite likely opposition from the IMF, the government will probably implement a 5% cut in the payroll tax rate as it looks to spur growth. Overall, though, the government remains committed to its policy goals and we believe it will continue to work towards meeting its fiscal targets and reform objectives.
- Although we have upgraded Romania's economic prospects, there remain risks from a more severe Eurozone crisis, a downturn in the broader Eurozone...

Abstract

This article uses a literature review about postponement, decoupling point and cold chain to offer alternatives for Brazilian distribution of refrigerated chicken. It was possible to conclude that a decoupling point between first and further industrialization can be a viable option for selling and distributing refrigerated chicken that has from seven to maximum of thirty days of shelf life.

What is 'Peer Review'?

“Peer review is the evaluation of work by one or more people of similar competence to the producers of the work (peers). It constitutes a form of self-regulation by qualified members of a profession within the relevant field.

Peer review methods are employed to maintain standards of quality, improve performance, and provide credibility.

In academia, scholarly peer review is often used to determine an academic paper's suitability for publication. Peer review can be categorized by the type of activity and by the field or profession in which the activity occurs, e.g., medical peer review.”

Abstract (summary)

This paper addresses Japan's economy, its new economic policy package, and the new term - Abenomics - that is used to describe the three pillars, or "arrows," of the Abe government's focus on the Japanese economy and on economic policy. The term Abenomics is an example of brilliant branding. At the same time it is risky, since it implies Prime Minister Abe's success or failure will depend on the success or failure of Abenomics. This paper makes three major points. First, it is far too early to tell whether Abenomics will be successful - in ending deflation, bringing about price stability and getting the economy onto a stable, full employment growth path. Second, perhaps the most important change is the shift in people's feelings about Japan's future, from resignation to optimistic hope. However it is not at all clear that this new mindset will become deeply engrained and sustained. Third, we should distinguish between Abe as Prime Minister and Abenomics.

Product Upgrades

ProQuest has hundreds of our products that touch the research lifecycle including many that are getting upgrades late this summer and fall. To be informed about upcoming changes, watch this page: <http://www.proquest.com/productupgrades> and sign up for updates; we will post new information as it becomes available. To keep up with the upgrades, our LibGuides are also being updated, so this LibGuide may not match the interface you see for a short while.

What is ProQuest Central?

ProQuest Central is the largest, multidisciplinary, full-text database available in the market today. This resource provides access to 30 of ProQuest's most highly used databases, with a variety of content types across over 160 subjects, making this the broadest single research resource in the world. ProQuest Central won the Software & Information Industry Association (SIIA) 2010 CODIE Award for Best Online General Reference Service.

While ProQuest Central provides access to millions of much-coveted full text articles from thousands of scholarly journals, it also provides access to information not available in other aggregated resources such as:

- Over 70,000 full text dissertations in the areas of business, psychology, physical sciences, health, education and more
- Over 90,000 working papers from providers such as SSRN
- Thousands of up-to-date market and industry reports, and country profiles
- The most comprehensive collection of market, industry, and economic reports available on the market today

The ProQuest platform is optimized to provide deep subject access, as well as the best interdisciplinary cross-search for many levels of users. ProQuest Central is also enabled with

8. How to RefWorks on YouTube

- RefWorks on-line course is available on YouTube
- <https://www.youtube.com/user/ProQuestRefWorks>

The screenshot displays the YouTube channel page for ProQuestRefWorks. At the top, the YouTube logo and search bar are visible. The channel banner features a group of six diverse people. Below the banner, the channel name 'ProQuestRefWorks' is prominently displayed, along with a '登録済み' (Subscribed) button. A navigation menu includes 'ホーム', '動画', '再生リスト', 'チャンネル', 'フリートーク', and '概要'. The main content area is titled '次のおすすめ' (Next Recommended) and shows several video thumbnails with their titles and durations. On the right side, there is a '関連チャンネル' (Related Channels) section with three channel recommendations: 'EndNoteTraining', 'The Tonight Show...', and 'GameGrumps', each with a 'チャンネル登録' (Subscribe) button.
